

Music Community Intern

Do you want to be part of the work we do with our artist community and the music industry? Come intern with us!

At Low-Fi we want people to experience live music in a meaningful way. To do so we have created a platform for artists, hosts and concert goers. Here they can meet and co-create intimate concerts in private homes, gardens, and other non-traditional concert spaces. In the Spring of 2020 we are expanding to Sweden, as well as growing our user base in Denmark and finetuning our concept. Do you want to be part of the work we do with our artist community and the music industry? Come intern with us!

We are a Copenhagen based music/tech startup with an international team of 12 people and an office dog. We love going to work and do what we do best - with a strong team spirit and a 'let's do it' attitude. Working at Low-Fi you will be a part of something bigger than yourself; You will become a member of a global DIY live music scene, where the close proximity between artists and audience creates a special atmosphere that allows everyone to drop their guard and create meaningful connections with the music and each other.

We're looking for an intern who can help us sustain and grow our artist community and industry connections in Denmark and Sweden, as well as work on making Low-Fi even better for artists through strong tools and product solutions. You will be working closely with our Music Community Manager as well as our Swedish Market Manager.

You are:

- A music lover who keeps up with new music across genres
- Passionate about live music and alternative concert formats
- Working towards establishing a career in the music industry

You know how to:

- Communicate with artists and music industry stakeholders
- Think in scalable solutions and processes
- Think strategic and be innovative
- Assist in developing concepts and digital product solutions
- Work with several projects and timelines at the same time
