

Communications Intern

Join our comms team and help us bring Index Award 2021 to life!

We're looking for an enthusiastic comms all-rounder to intern with us! We're an international organisation working with design to improve life—in other words, design for good. We run a large-scale prize, The Index Award, education and investment activities. You'll join an agile communication team to work on a wide variety of projects, from concept development through to final production. The opportunity is for a full-time position, six months in duration, starting in March 2021.

The job will include (but not be limited to) the following tasks:

- Writing copy for a variety of digital channels;
- Social media support and management;
- Creating simple graphics and video in various formats;
- Analytics and strategy research to optimise our performance reach;
- General communications support and light project management.

Ideally, you are:

- A digital communication/journalism student or recent grad;
- Passionate about content creation, whether it's through your own initiatives, social media account(s) or through previous work/internships;
- Native or fluent in English (any other languages are a plus!);
- Confident with the Creative Suite: Photoshop, InDesign etc. (video production experience is a plus);
- Enthusiastic and able to take the initiative.

We offer:

- A chance to help tell the most interesting design and innovation stories;
- Work within large-scale communication campaigns for one of the biggest design awards in the world;
- Hands-on, diverse experience within a small, dynamic and very international team;
- An inspiring and social work environment - and plenty of laughs!
