

Double bass - Lumbye Akademiet

- Lumbye Akademiet was established in October 2022 and is connected to the Copenhagen Philharmonic. Within the first semester the orchestra academy can look back on their student's big success winning professional auditions and competitions. World class instrumentalists, such as Daniel Müller-Schott and members of the Berlin Philharmonic have given masterclasses and teaching from within the chamber music group to be as interactive and encouraging as possible. The education of the academy consists of a balanced mix of playing with the Copenhagen Philharmonic, participating in master classes, workshops, mental training, body awareness, mock auditions and chamber music concerts. The aim is to provide an all-around support and training in the life of a professional orchestral musician.

Lumbye Akademiet's educational two-year program is directed towards high level music students or young professionals (a minimum of a Bachelor degree is required) who are interested in gaining orchestral experience and be stood by individually through the process of auditioning.

Lumbye Akademiet's approach is holistic and includes all aspects of music making. Its goal is to educate and develop the instrumentalist within a context of a professional orchestra and individually, through a one to one mentorship.

Audition date: 12. March

Chosen candidates will be invited to audition in Copenhagen one month prior to the audition date.

All EU citizens are encouraged to apply no matter their religious, cultural, social background or sexual orientation.
